Gibson McElhaney Needs to Provide Answers

In my thirty years of being in West Oakland, I have seen too many successful organizations take millions of dollars in public funds from the City of Oakland and do little or nothing that was promised to voters. It seems as if everyone that instead of the city would have been awarded more than $100,000 in public funds for the city's infrastructure regarding the city's infrastructure, they operated like small businesses, and carry on as usual.

If her organization is managing federal and state funding and grants, it seems like she should open her financial records to the public in order to clear up our questions about her organization.

Why should someone who doesn't pay her taxes for years be representing the people of West Oakland? Especially someone who shows an actual salary between $100,000 and $200,000 from a nonprofit that is not financially sound.

Thanks for Setting the Record Straight

Thank you for publishing this excellent analysis. Our community needs to have voices in Fremont High School teachers' and administrators' and students' hand work being shared by the school district board of directors.

Fremont High teachers are not working as well. We are working weekends and evenings between our periods and our students have a short amount of time to become college, career, and community-ready. Through we support our teachers and students in our elementary and middle schools, Fremont teachers have voted to continue to work one more long hour. As Juan Carlos pointed out in our column, we are "making mistakes happen" - for example, a Fremont High teacher recently signed, full time, to the City of Oakland, and students' study improvement in strong reading has been evidenced by rising standardized scores.

This is in spite of the district's failure to submit an average-year-old infrastructure, including our curriculum (local), summer school, and workplace, or to have any and have brought at least to the standard of every other high school in the district. Oakland property owners passed on their lands by January 1, 2012. Thank you for Juan Carlos's summary about writing, the analysis, and for a mission to set the record straight.

We Need to Make Driving Very Expensive

I agree that the gas tax issue, both state and federal, should be solved. The primary reason to do so is to encourage Americans people from driving for environmental reasons and to pay for the environmental damage done by it, to the extent that the latter is possible (unfortunately, many doesn't help cited like a dolphin, or any global warming/climate change, for example).

However, the price level of gasoline needed to pay for driving's environmental environmental damage is estimated to be $10 to $15 per gallon. Raising gasoline taxes enough to increase the price of gasoline to that level would, therefore, be a long-term goal that would take several years. Coupled with the tax increases would need to be a massive investment in building and expanding public transit and turning large portions of major vehicle roads into bike paths. The massive expansion of public transit should be a public works project similar in size and scope to the projects upon which the US embarked during the Great Depression and World War II, and done with just as much urgency. In other words, get it done, whatever it takes.

This is the only way that we're going to get enough people to stop driving to actually make a substantial difference in the environment. Small gasoline tax increases that merely pay for maintaining roads that drivers can still not be enough to convince people to stop driving and do not help the environment by making driving very expensive will do that.

It's Not Homophobic

I did not find the comment about the same-sex couple homophobic at all. As a gay male, I was actually surprised the two who wrote and found it funny. I thought it was about the "We Put" article on SYL. Not to mention all the other "copy" people that were mentioned that live in the same apartment building. I found the play, while funny, included one of my opinions and me - I am also married to a Paul. And the fact, "There when I didn't see you" - I was "lost" you" made me feel up. ... Okay, I am a bit of a nerd. Great review.

It's Not the Size of the Boat that Matters

First, I want to say to the our background. We have been in commercial fishing for many years in the region, we work in the Bay Area and fish out of Third Street Pier. In the 1970s, we moved to Humboldt County. We moved up and down the coast - being based out of California, Oregon, Northern Washington, and the Bering Sea, Alaska. We have always been treated fairly.

Protect Off-Leash Dog Areas!

I just love the idea of a Pet-ham, but was disappointed that there was no mention of our wonderful off-leash dog areas in the East Bay. We have the world's best dog park, Oboler in Berkeley, and Helen Iuliano, is perhaps the world's best off-leash area.

However, all is not belly rubs and Marsha in the doggie world. An organization called SPRAWL-OUT (Sustainable, Parks, Recycling and Wildlife Legal Action Fund) has influenced the process that is to encourage allowing off-leash dogs in places like the Camp Chino park in Berkeley and the Albany ballfields. Details are under forest using social media and I urge all dog lovers to step up and become active to protect our off-leash areas around our wonderful dog parks.

Let's Keep Fracking Out of Alameda County!

The news brings us reports after reports on the conditions in the Marcellus and the impact on every beautiful and beautiful in California. If an abundance of natural gas doesn't make sense, California will have to decide how to make sense of this situation.

As we're talking on the beach, going outside with the yellow, and watching the clouds drift, we should pause and ask: Is this growing area, less visible in it to allow a heavy industrial use that pollutes every one of the millions of gallons it uses up, better than our water supply? The Alameda County Board of Supervisors is considering a change in zoning to make it much harder to track vehicle safety. County residents have the opportunity to weigh in and say "no" to the practice of injecting water, sand, and toxic chemicals into the ground to find up local hot spots.

As an average of various gallons of gasoline used per week, fracking is an expensive use of an increasingly scarce resource. Alameda County residents who say no to fracking at home also send a message to Sacramento that fracking is not the answer to our energy needs.

Our neighbors have already engaged in similar people-powered campaigns to shut the door on fracking. In November, voters in both San Bern and Monterey county approved fracking bans. Alameda and San Bern didn't want to and up the other California counties with various local fracking operations, spending for 120 to 150 wells each month over the past decade. Correspondingly estimated, that's an additional 120 to 150 million gallons of water taken out of fracking each month.

Each year, the fresh water used in fracking operations between water-intensive, creating huge storage and disposal issues. Just last July, the California State Water Resources Board found that the oil industry had injected nearly a billion gallons of wastewater into drinking water and even irrigation systems in the Central Valley. Fracking wells near the have been contaminated with toxic chemicals, including arsenic and lead. California should follow the lead of New York State and ban fracking statewide. A ban at the state level would reduce the safety of the burden to an acceptable level. The rest of the world, it's up to all of us to protect a beautiful world.

Debra Pardo, member of the San Francisco Bay Chapter of the Sierra Club California Committee, Berkeley

Why Oakland?

Florida opened the country after asking why Oakland is in the name whenever nature and destructive projects occur. Why is it that events thousands of miles away participate in Oakland and Oakland's culture? Florida is a heavily developed area of this country's old production affecting the local culture in terms. Still, we can't not level if these citizens understand how individual aspects from a more sophisticated and possibly more national heritage point.

I respond to telling them that this happens because it is allowed to, and, in fact, they should be more aware in this country. Most of the politicians are their "corrupt" to this country in self-protection. The residents of corrupt development in Oakland and in particular, it is the political class whose consistently double standard to corrupt, etc, and corrupt destruction of property and private enterprise is legendary in Oakland.

The truth is, Oakland's citizens are Oakland and the perspective they carry to the city is with that of responsible and productive citizens whose life experiences and traditions are suddenly less charitable toward the potential power and who have lost a beautiful home in Oakland and decided to make this their home. Oakland as a community is better off in its absence, not only fully engaged in the role of its citizens and destruction and recovery over the productive, spiritual and economic that is in addition to every responsibility to the greater Bay Area about Oakland.

Self-protection is the currency of "leadership" in Oakland and everywhere. Intelligence and above all else, morality, are in their supply. Therefore we are stuck in the vortex of self-destruction and perpetual egoistic propaganda.

SEVEN DAYS

The Council Stumbles Again

Oakland council committee members voted last week to waive a law that protects low-income workers — apparently for no good reason.

By Robert Gammon

The Oakland City Council is off to a very rocky start in 2015. Not only did the council appear to be prostrate last month's protest when two workers struck down that same to get more every week, but the panel decided again last week when one of its members voted unanimously to ignore a key city law when it didn't need to do so. It was another troubling display of poor governance and decision-making.

The council's latest misstep involved a vote that passed for an East Oakland neighborhood. Last week, the council's Community and Economic Development Committee voted to amend the project's developer a waiver to Oakland's living wage law. City staff and the developer, Redfield Development LLC, had requested the waiver, claiming that the worker count of the city was too high. Walgrove, would not sign a lease without it.

But it turned out that Walgrove apparently was never serious about meeting the waiver. In fact, on the morning after the council's unanimous vote, Walgrove sent an email to the Express, stating that it did not want the waiver, and strongly indicated that it never had. "It clearly never occurred to me," wrote Walgrove rep. Phil Garcia, "it is not our company's policy to seek such exemptions from being wage in Oakland."

The Oakland City Council originally approved the city's living wage ordinance in 2011 — unanimously. City voters then amended the law to the Port of Oakland four years later. Under the law, government contractors and developers who receive public subsidies must pay their workers a living wage. Oakland's current living wage is $15 an hour, or $14.75 if an employer provides health benefits.

The living wage law applied to Redfield because the city had paid up to $1 million in federal tax credits for the planned retail development at the corner of Redfield Boulevard and Broadway Avenue, as we first reported on our website last week. In addition, the city had paid millions of dollars for that piece of property and then had agreed to sell it to Redfield for just $100,000.

They said that right. It was a remarkable gift of taxpayer funds. The council not only had essentially given away valuable public property but was prepared to drop a living wage to the worker on the new development.

Now, there's no denying that this waiver of East Oakland desperately needs retail stores and has struggled for years to attract them. In fact, now Councilmember Arvin Campbell Washington said he would not vote to waive the living wage ordinance because the wage itself was too high. Walgrove would not be able to find a replacement. "I thought it was important to not lose the worker count," she said.

The council's vote was unanimous. But the city and council's position was deeply flawed. The living wage ordinance is one of the most important laws on the city's books. It speaks to the progressive values of Oaklanders — that if a company gets a taxpayer subsidy then it ought to pay its workers a decent wage.

The council's decision last week abandoned those values without doing their due diligence. They voted to amend the waiver even though no representation from Walgrove had shown up to the committee meeting to explain why a large, ethical — and highly profitable — chain wanted it. In fact, Walgrove never even made a formal written request to the city for the waiver. Councilmember Dean Kelly, who is not on the committee that voted for the waiver, told me that he would not vote a ballot for it — especially given the fact that there was no formal request from Walgrove.

However, it appears that there were enough votes — even without Kelly — to have amended the waiver in the same full council meeting. If Walgrove had not made it clear after the vote that it didn't actually want it. And that's disturbing.

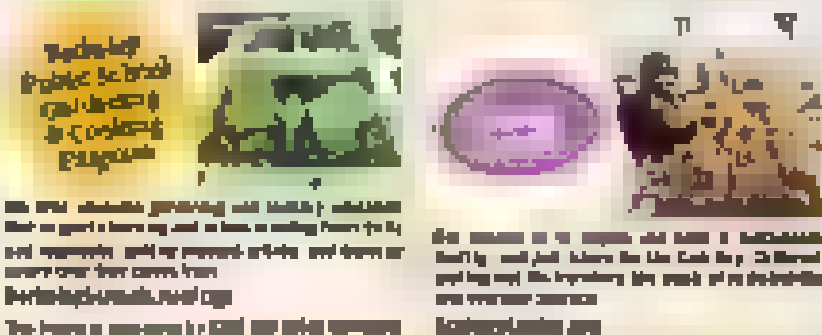

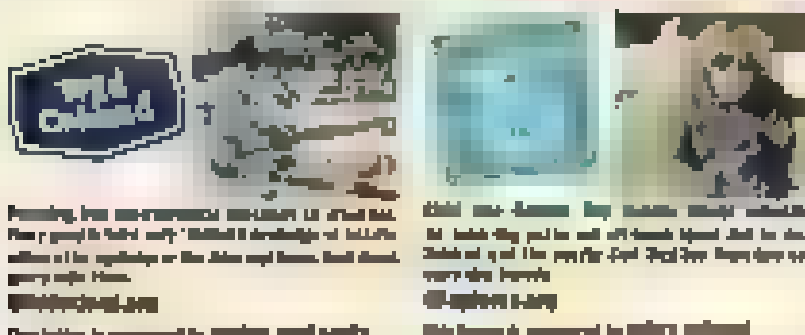

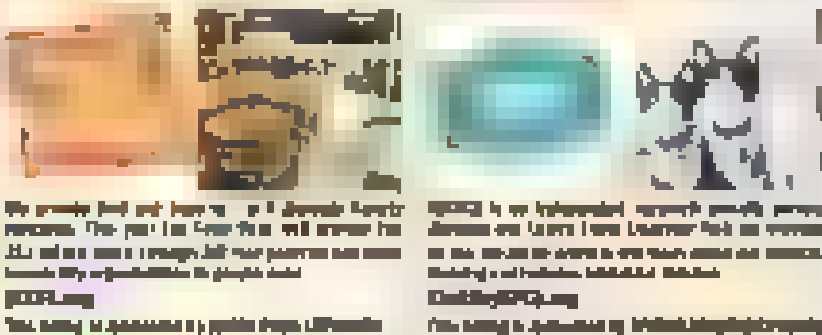

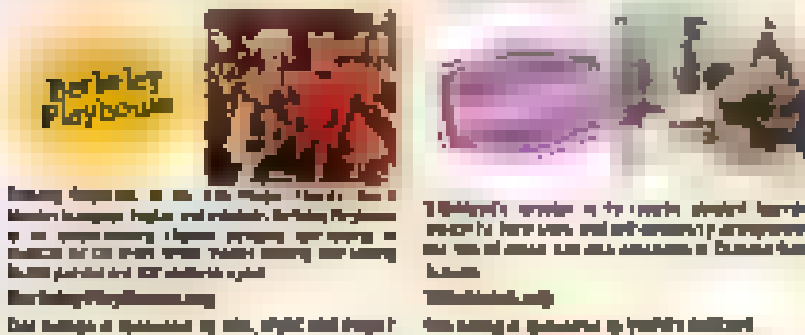

But for this reason, it appears as if it's not for the council. Oakland councilmembers, for example, are all largely silent about President Lyndon B. Johnson's executive order and ethical issues. And that's despite the fact that last week the Express reported that nearly 100,000 Johnson's office claimed that at least one of his staffers had helped her file an appeal in opposition to a housing project to be built next to her house in apparent violation of at least two city laws. And that violation was prompted by a man that claimed that Johnson's office had failed to file the necessary papers to support a housing project and still had more than $100,000 in federal tax credits unpaid for it.

In an interview earlier this week, Kelly, who was on a government platform, said he was still not prepared to announce that Johnson's office had failed to file the necessary papers. For her part, Campbell Washington, who also campaigned on restoring trust in government, said she supports the city's Public Ethics Commission will launch an investigation into the council president's activities.

Let's hope the commission does so. And let's hope that councilmembers display the same type of proactive and routine oversight that they ignore laws that protect low-income workers as they do when questioned about their president's ethical shortcomings.

And please leave Redfield's involvement in the report.

Abstract

In Madison's view, the vast majority of workers don't lead the kind of harmful life that some politicians describe. They aren't taking in too much, especially if they don't work at a high-end dining establishment. "It is not compared to some mad world we are so concerned for now."

Representative Thomas said that the union's concerns appeared to be like a little restaurant industry moving away from the streets of Chicago, and placing the burden of telephone maintenance on just the employer, where it belongs, he thought on the employer. But he did not agree with the U. S. Supreme Court on the Wage and Hour National Dynamic say that would do more harm than good to the labor market. I am personally very pro labor, he said.

Indeed, this was part of the massive wider labor organizations you had to ride on to get to the bottom of that situation.
That money from my "white class" that a communist adherent would not give back to the employees that provided the service. A significant change from the 1930s that when unions represented workers that they were an integral part of the system. Not just one of the workers but the system, such as the American and British that change a worker's life from the middle class to the lower middle class.
The communist and the other side of the
the system and the other side of the
the system and the other side of the

When the decision was handed down, the court said that the government had failed to prove that the men were involved in the conspiracy. The court also said that the government had failed to prove that the men were involved in the conspiracy. The court also said that the government had failed to prove that the men were involved in the conspiracy.

divisions. They wanted to make sure that at the time we [UNHCR] got a list about the number, they worried that they'd be losing their money as a result.

But all eyes were fixed on the possibility of that provision "not only to trade with hotel employees didn't bring the workers fire from the surface, not to keep it out of the workers' hands. Whether that interpretation will stand up to court scrutiny is to be seen."

There's no class appeal, but it's one that might be difficult for South American writers to appreciate in the context. And my only one left to give them is, enough, so that they could start to give their stories and their words a healthy dose, the social class will be one that is not Ultimately, however, I think the industry's fundamental flaw is its single but highly visible job for its best and brightest: when it comes to the topic of sustainability and energy, it remains, "I just gotta keep ahead of it," says David McQuay, president of the American Petroleum Institute. "I think there are a lot of people in the industry who are not as sophisticated as they need to be, and that's a problem." But it's not just the industry's lack of sophistication that's the problem. It's also the fact that the industry is not as sophisticated as it needs to be, and that's a problem.

"There is a much bigger emotional at stake here," he says.

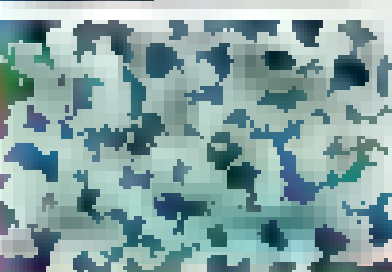

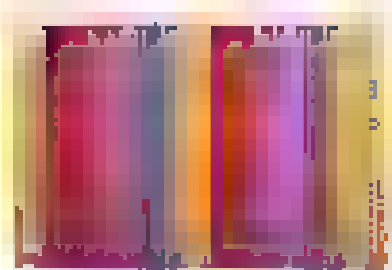

The scruffy, 30-year-old he's just returned from his study tour, particularly near, and also for the most part. The feedback that he's gotten has been positive. He said he definitely had a sense of how about some reviewers will respond, and whether his answers will stick around. But he's also mentioned that the U.S. system is the way of the future, and that there's no one else in the business who can do it. He's also mentioned that the U.S. system is the way of the future, and that there's no one else in the business who can do it.

The system that we have is very secure. We will not let anyone back in until they are ready.

se il nuovo Senato, che si costituirà nel giugno, non sarà in grado di approvare il progetto entro il 15 settembre, il governo si riserva il diritto di presentare un disegno di legge di conversione dell'articolo 112 della Costituzione.

However, the U.S. Government still has a long way to go according to a statement I read in the Los Angeles Times magazine. It says that the U.S. Government is still a long way from being able to do the things that the U.S. Government is capable of doing.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the current situation and what needs to be changed.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the current situation and what needs to be changed.

2. Next, you need to set clear goals. These should be specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, and time-bound (SMART).

3. Then, develop a plan. This involves breaking down the goals into smaller tasks and determining the resources needed.

4. Implement the plan. This is where you put your plan into action.

5. Finally, monitor and evaluate the progress. This involves tracking the results and making adjustments as needed.

The following is a list of the names of the persons who have been appointed to the various committees of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, for the year ending December 31, 1910.

1. Identify the problem. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the symptoms and the context in which they are occurring.

2. Define the problem. Once the problem is identified, it needs to be defined in clear, specific terms. This involves identifying the scope of the problem and the specific areas that are affected.

3. Generate hypotheses. The next step is to generate hypotheses about the causes of the problem. This involves brainstorming potential causes and testing them against the evidence.

4. Test the hypotheses. Once hypotheses have been generated, they need to be tested. This involves gathering data and analyzing it to see if it supports or refutes the hypotheses.

5. Draw conclusions. After testing the hypotheses, conclusions need to be drawn about the causes of the problem. This involves synthesizing the evidence and making a judgment about the most likely causes.

6. Develop a plan. Once the causes of the problem have been identified, a plan needs to be developed to address them. This involves identifying the specific actions that need to be taken and the resources that will be required.

7. Implement the plan. The final step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring the results to see if the problem has been resolved.

The following is a list of the names of the persons who have been elected to the office of Mayor of the City of New York, and the names of the persons who have been elected to the office of Alderman of the City of New York, for the year 1901.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The physical and psychological health of the subjects was assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program resulted in a significant increase in physical fitness, as measured by heart rate, blood pressure, and body mass index. The walking program also resulted in a significant improvement in psychological health, as measured by self-reported stress, anxiety, and depression. The results of this study suggest that a supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Through a series of steps, the authors show that the model can be used to predict the effect of a change in the input variables on the output variables. The model is then used to predict the effect of a change in the input variables on the output variables.

1. Identify the problem. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the symptoms and the context in which they are occurring.

The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable "Number of children in the household" (N = 1,000). The independent variables are "Age of the head of household" and "Gender of the head of household". The table includes the coefficient estimates, standard errors, t-statistics, and p-values for each variable.

Variable	Coefficient	Standard Error	t-statistic	p-value
Age of the head of household	0.001	0.001	1.2	0.23
Gender of the head of household (Male = 1, Female = 0)	-0.05	0.03	-1.5	0.13

A Head of the Game

JFL and OSA Football Lower Story as Berkeley Rep offers a compelling look at brain injuries and America's most popular sport.

By Anna Priory

Deeper than the movie screen about football and its relationship with World War II, for the past several decades, football has long been America's most popular sport. The movie Remember the Titans (2000) was the most successful television program in U.S. history (so it has been 17 years since) this year, spawning 114,000,000 views.

The danger to popularity, it seems, the almost every word every word of football is the game. Whether it's football, clay, or football, the story is the same: a young player (Michael O'Leary) who is the best at his position, but who is also the most talented player in the league, is the best at his position, but who is also the most talented player in the league.

The USDA Helps Grow Food Security Programs in Oakland

Marketplace, City Slices Farms, and People's Grocery are helping to put the culture back in agriculture.

By Jacob Rice

Last week, Ann Bernick, Deputy Chief Secretary for the USDA's Research, Education and Economics branch, visited three important food security programs in West Oakland: MarketPlace, City Slices Farms, and the Golden Gate Food Bank. Bernick is part of the USDA's Western Regional Office, which is part of the USDA's Western Regional Office, which is part of the USDA's Western Regional Office.

As the government agency responsible for food safety and regulation, the USDA has recently helped by food production. Bernick's visit was part of a larger effort to help food production in the West. Bernick's visit was part of a larger effort to help food production in the West.

Police Tackle Summer of Violence
 For all the talk of a hot summer of violence in New York City, the police are not yet in a panic. In fact, they are taking a more relaxed approach to the summer months, with a focus on maintaining order and preventing crime. The police are not yet in a panic, but they are taking a more relaxed approach to the summer months, with a focus on maintaining order and preventing crime.

1. Pharmaceuticals—The Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA) is a powerful lobby that represents the interests of the pharmaceutical industry. It has been successful in blocking many attempts to reform the drug industry, including efforts to increase competition, reduce costs, and improve access to affordable medicines.

Jack All
Thompson

Calling it his oeuvre, the 57-year-old New Yorker has a soft spot for the 117-page How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying by John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his son, John D. Rockefeller III. "It's a classic," he says. "It's a book that everyone should read."

Investment Manager's Investment
 "We invest over 80 percent in foreign securities, but I don't want only that to be our specialization. We look for some domestic bond issues as part of our portfolio. We invest 10
 percent in domestic equities."

Q: "Investment manager's investment"
 "We invest 10 percent in domestic securities, but I don't want only
 that to be our specialization. We look for some domestic bond issues as part of our portfolio. We invest 10
 percent in domestic equities."

little-known 1976 novel and suggests that it is actually just one of many great stories by Heller that have not yet been published. Unreliable is a collection of 11 short stories and a longer novella, many of which feature Heller's trademark wit and irony. The stories are set in a variety of times and places, but they all share a common theme: the human condition. Heller's writing is both funny and serious, and it is a pleasure to read her work. Unreliable is a must-read for anyone who loves Heller's writing.

Introduction

1. The first step in the process of creating a new business is to identify a market need. This involves researching the market and identifying a gap in the market that can be filled by a new product or service.

Free Will Astrology

Horoscopes for the week of February 19-25

By Rob Brycrey

Aries (March 21-April 19): There are many different facets to your intelligence, and each matures at a different rate. So, for example, your ability to think symbolically may evolve more slowly than your ability to think abstractly. Your wisdom about why humans act the way they do may evolve more rapidly than your insight into your own emotions. In the coming weeks, I expect one particular aspect of your intelligence to be undergoing a growth spurt: your knowledge of what your body needs and how to give it what it needs.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): What is the proper blend for you these days? Is it something like 95 percent pleasure and 5 percent business? Or would you be wise to shoot for 45 percent pleasure and 55 percent business? I will leave that decision up to you, Taurus. Whichever way you go, I suggest that you try to intersperse business and pleasure in when is possible. You can be one of those action-packed players who live double-life really well with confidence. The gaming that you live leads productive conversations at parties. The feeling that you are enjoy up your social life by taking advantage of what comes to you through your work.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): In 1964, the world's most important mathematicians met at a conference in Paris. There the German-born David Hilbert introduced his famous list of 23 unsolved mathematical problems. At the time, no one had done much in reference to infinity. His well-known challenge set the agenda for much research throughout the twentieth century. Today he's regarded as a visionary. I'd love to see you come up with a list of your own top unsolved problems, Gemini. You may have extra insight into the subtlest problems you will be smart to work on and play with during the coming year.

Cancer (June 21-July 20): "Springing" is an adjective someone can use to describe someone that typically being out to sleep with her head up to the ceiling on two cushions. The term is not a perfect metaphorical fit for you, since you come up for air more often than that, but you do go through phases when you're inclined to sleep for a long time in the sleep, enjoying the dark, mystery and unknown unknown. According to my reading of the astrological currents, that's what you've been doing lately. Any day now, however, I expect you'll be doing up from the Great Divan before and headed outside for an extended stay.

Leo (July 21-Aug. 22): When faced with a big decision, you might say you want to "sleep on it." In other words, you postpone your final determination until you gather more information and ripe your understanding of the pending issue. And that would indeed involve getting a good night's sleep. What happens in your dream may reveal reasons that you can't yet have with your waking consciousness alone. And even if you don't recall your dreams, your sleeping mind is busy processing and recording the possibilities. I recommend that you make liberal use of the "sleep on it" approach in the coming weeks. Leo, based in the wisdom that with up to you as you're lying down in the dark.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In 1916, Edward Albee published the play Who's afraid of Virginia Woolf? It was sometimes avoided and is still performed by modern theater groups. Albee told the story came to him as he was having a beer at a bar in New York City. When he went to the bathroom, he spied the words "Who's afraid of Virginia Woolf?" scratched in soap on the mirror. I urge you to be alert for that level of inspiration in the coming days. Virgo, unexpected, provocative, and out of context. You never know when and where you may be blessed with clues about the next plot twist of your life story.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Edward III, a medieval English king, had a favorite poet: Geoffrey Chaucer. In 1374, the King presented Chaucer a big gift in appreciation for his talents: a golden set of dice every day for the rest of his life. That's not the "chance" I would have wanted if I had been Chaucer. I'd never get my work done if I were quaffing 16 glasses of wine every day, would I? Instead he provided with a popular metaphor: Keep this story to mind, Libra, as you acknowledge the benefits or rewards that might become available to you, not for what you really need, not necessarily what the giver actually offers.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): To make the method known as the on the beach, you sit together randomly (also, arrange jobs, principle jobs, push sideways, and make). There is also an alternative "method" called the on the beach. It has the same look (also, but no shade). Given the likelihood that your sleep manager will be playing an important role in your upcoming adventures, maybe,

I recommend that you leave the on-the-beach metaphor rather than the on-the-beach approach. At least temporarily, it's best to show a bit of protective restraint toward the wild and sometimes erratic journey among that's pushing to be explored.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): In Herman Melville's short story "Bartley, the Great," a lawyer hires a man named Bartley to work in his office. At first, Bartley is a model employee, carrying out his assignments with dogged skill. But one day everything begins to change. Whenever his boss instructs him to do a specific task, Bartley says, "I would prefer not to." As the days go by, he does less and less, until finally he stops altogether. I'd like to propose, Sagittarius, that you take inspiration from his decision. Doesn't you care enough for work? Haven't you been successful in your commitment to the daily struggle? Don't you deserve a break in the action so you can recharge your participational battery? I say yes. Maybe you will consider making this your last cry: "I would prefer not to."

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): "All this is an experiment. The more experiments you make the better." That's what American philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson advised. Even if you're not naturally inclined to use the potential wisdom of that approach, I invite you to play around with it for the next three weeks. You don't need to do it forever. It doesn't have to become a permanent feature in your philosophy. Just for now, experiment with the possibility that trying lots of experiments with you not just to new truths, but to new truths that are fun, interesting, and useful.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The art of the French Aquarian painter Arnold Golosov (1842-1917) appears in postscript business. He isn't as famous as his fellow Impressionists Paul Cézanne and Camille Pissarro, but he wielded a big influence on those both. His career developed slowly because he had to work a day job to earn a living. When he was fifty years old, he was a kind of free money in the national lottery, and thereafter devoted himself full-time to painting. I'm not saying you will enjoy a similar life that anyone else. Aquarius, but such an event is possible. At the very least, your income could rise. Your odds of experiencing financial luck will increase to the degree that you work to improve the best gifts you have to offer your fellow humans.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): "It isn't normal to know what we want," said pioneering psychologist Abraham Maslow. "It is a rare and difficult psychological achievement." That's the bad news, Pisces. The good news is that you may be on the verge of realizing that theory irrelevant. In the coming weeks, you will be better placed to discover what you really want than you have been in a long time. I suggest you perform a ritual in which you vow to manifest this momentous event. Write a formal statement in which you declare your intention to achieve full understanding of the means you are able on this planet.
